

What is a Compliment ?

1. Saying something NICE about someone
2. Saying something NICE to someone

When you say something nice about a person, to that person, he or she will probably feel good. This is why we say, giving a compliment is like giving a gift.

Gifts and Compliments provide value and make people feel good.

Some of the following are compliments...and some are not. Remember, a compliment is something that you say nice about a person, to the person. Circle the ones that you think are compliments:

"That's a nice____(painting)."	"Thank you."	"The weather is nice."
"That's a cool toy."	"You're welcome."	"Where did you get that book?"
"Nice job."	"That was fun."	"Where did you get that cool book?"
"Nice try."	"You are fun."	"Do you want to play?"
"I like your ____."	"I had fun playing with you."

Circle the compliment:

"How much did that cost?"	"Do you like candy?"	"Bless you."
"How did you get so good at playing checkers?"	"Do you want some candy?"	"You're smart."
"What grade are you in?"	"Let's be friends."	"How did you learn to do that?"
"Let's play together tomorrow."	"Do you want to come over for a playdate?"	"Why don't you want to play that game again, it was fun?"
	"That was a fun playdate. Let's do it again."

Circle the compliment: Answers (has to satisfy the two rules)

"That's a nice ____ (painting)." (but only when said to the owner, not if it is only about a painting that doesn't belong to the listener) "That's a cool toy." (same as above) "Nice job." "Nice try." "I like your ____."	"Thank you." "You're welcome." "That was fun." (when it has to do with someone else being there too and sharing the experience...otherwise not) "You are fun." "I had fun playing with you."	"The weather is nice." "Where did you get that book?" "Where did you get that cool book?" "Do you want to play?"
